

Call for Reviewers

African and Black Diaspora: An International Journal (Routledge) is a peer-reviewed academic journal for scholars working in the cutting edge scholarly field of African Diaspora Studies by advancing the analytical and interrogative discourses that constitute this distinctive interdisciplinary discipline of the deterritorialized and transnational nature of the African and Black Diaspora populations. The journal is currently seeking to expand its roster of peer reviewers designed to assure high standards of articles published in our journal and provide input to our contributors' field of scholarly research about new and emerging research. To ensure the high quality of our journal, we invite individuals working within a field covered by the journal to join our international team of reviewers as a referee for submitted papers related to their specific areas of expertise.

How to Become a Reviewer

If you are interested in becoming a reviewer, please send an email with a short CV attached indicating your interest to one of the editors, Dr. Fasil Demissie, fdemissi@depaul.edu or Dr. Sandra Jackson, sjackson@depaul.edu. In your email, please identify the specific subject and geographic areas you would be willing to review articles. If accepted as a reviewer, we will add you to our database and send you a copy of our reviewer's guideline.
